PREVENTING BULLYING THROUGH THEATRE
Yakima Valley children learn to respect & accept others
From Seattle's Taproot Theatre Road Company

SEATTLE – February 12, 2008 – Taproot Theatre's Road Company is taking its social-issues plays to elementary and secondary schools in the Yakima Valley March 10th through 20th to teach students how to recognize bullying, inform them how to react and give them the tools they need to speak up and stop suffering in silence.

Fifteen to 25 percent of students in the United States are believed to frequently experience the turmoil of bullying, according to U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, but as alarming as that may be, 15 to 20 percent say they bully others.

"We want students to recognize that we all have a part in making the world a place where violence, harassment, and gossip can be fought," says Josiah Wallace, director of outreach for Taproot Theatre Company.

The touring company incorporates into its plays bullying-prevention principles from the Committee for Children's "Steps to Respect®" program. "Steps to Respect" teaches students social skills and the three R's of preventing this type of abusive behavior: Recognize, Refuse, and Report bullying.

The Road Company's plays target students in various age groups by capturing their attentions and imaginations through characters they like and identify with. In Camp Super Friend, the protagonist is a superhero who, despite his super powers, struggles to make friends. The popularity of televised talent shows will draw students to Star Power, a play about two fifth graders who encounter a bully while competing for the title of "The Most Talented Kid in Washington." Each play has specific education goals, such as forming friendships, appreciating differences and showing respect for others.

The Road Company expects to perform 150 times in 100 schools this winter and spring. In 2007, the Road Company gave 242 performances of these bullying-prevention plays at 180 schools for more than 93,000 students.

About the Road Company's Educational Touring

Taproot Theatre's Road Company has been touring dynamic educational plays to students throughout the Pacific Northwest since the 1980s. The Road Company reaches tens of thousands of students each year with productions that address relevant social issues and provide youth with safe steps to approach them. In addition to the touring productions, Taproot Theatre provides teachers' guides and resources to facilitate classroom discussion and increase the effectiveness of the message. The actors are also available for individual classroom visits.

Camp Super Friend

For Grades K-6

by Bethany Wallace

A play about forming friendships and appreciating differences.

Marvel may be a super hero, but that doesn't mean he knows how to be a super friend ... yet. At Super Camp, the summer camp for super heroes, Marvel discovers it's a lot harder to make friends than he thought. With some helpful advice from his dad, and the assistance of his camp counselor, Marvel learns what it takes to make and be a good friend.

Meanwhile, the evil Professor Nemesis has come up with a sinister plan to strip all the super-heroes of their powers. It's up to Marvel and his new friends to use their special gifts and work together to save the day.

Education Goals:

Friendship and Social Skills

- Starting a conversation
- Joining a group
- Showing respect for others
- Bullying prevention
- Appreciating differences
- Teamwork

Star Power

Education Goals:

Bullying Prevention

- Recognize, Refuse, Report
- How to be an ally
- Forming friendships
- Accepting diversity

Witness

For Grades 6-12

by Nicholas Hubbard

A play about the faces of bullying and the function of community.

Being a teenager is hard enough without having to deal with rumors, harassment and bullying.

Bullying affects more than just the victim. Everyone sees and struggles with the consequences. Do you choose to ignore it? Do you rationalize the problem? Do you fight back? How? Take matters into your own hands? Tell someone? Who?

What happens when the voices of teachers, students and parents intersect? All will be heard as characters recount their feelings, choices and observations. To foster a safe community everyone must play a part.

Education Goals:

- Identify the various forms of bullying
- Explore issues of power
- Address attitudes toward bullying
- Personal and social responsibility
